SOUTH-CAROLINA AND COUNTRY GAZETTE JOURNA

Containing the freſheſt Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic.

TUESDAY, APRIL 7, 1767.

BOSTON, February 22.

On Friday laſt the Honorable Houſe of Repreſentatives voted the following Anſwer to the Governor's Meſſage of the 13th inſtant: And the next Day a Committee appointed for that Purpoſe preſented it to his Excellency.

May it pleaſe your EXCELLENCY,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives at the laſt Seſſion of the General Court, were nearly unanimous in a vote for the diſmiſſion of Richard Jackſon, Eſq; from the Agency of this Province: That vote was unanimouſly concurred by the honorable Board. Your Excellency in a Speech to both of the Houſes, at the cloſe of that Seſſion, was pleaſed to give the ſtrongeſt aſſurances that you would take it into conſideration at the then next ſeſſion without delay. The Court was then prorouged. The Houſe patiently waited ſome time after the opening of the preſent ſeſſion, without receiving the leaſt intimation from your Excellency, relating to this intereſting ſubject. It became therefore abſolutely neceſſary to originate a ſecond vote of diſmiſſion: This vote has alſo paſſed both Houſes without the leaſt oppoſition; and having been laid before your Excellency, has occaſioned your Meſſage of the 13th inſtant: At which our ſurpriſe is inexpreſſible; and yet a total ſilence on this buſineſs would be an unpardonable neglect of our duty.

Your Excellency ſeems to be ſo deſirous of the "releaſe of Mr. Jackſon," that it is truly aſtoniſhing you ſhould think fit to delay the ſigning the vote for his diſmiſſion; eſpecially when the ſenſe of both Houſes has been repeatedly, and without the leaſt reſerve ſo publickly declared.

The Parliament of Great-Britain is the firſt great Council of the King and of the Nation; and no wiſe or virtuous Prince has ever thought proper to act a counter part to their unanimous advice. A proportionate degree of attention, on the principles of our excellent conſtitution, we have a right to expect.

But your Excellency has been pleaſed to intimate the reaſon of your delay, by ſaying that the Houſe "ſhould conſider that Payment and Diſmiſſion ought to go together:" This we are conſtrained to ſay implies a new and ſtrange demand: If your Excellency intends to with-hold your aſſent to the Reſolve of the two Houſes, till we ſhall take into conſideration an adequate reward to Mr. Jackſon for his ſervices, we ſhall have juſt reaſon to complain of it as an unconſtitutional exerciſe of your power, and in breach of the privelege of the Houſe. It is the undoubted right of the Houſe of Repreſentatives, to take their own time to proceed in any part of the public buſineſs, and in granting money they are not to be controuled: Your Excellency's tacking together Payment and Diſmiſſion, and intimating your expectation of our compliance with the one as a condition of your conſenting to the other, gives us the idea of a compoſition to which we are by no means inclined: Your Excellency might as well in our humble opinion, demand a certain ſum, and that much beyond the merit of that Gentleman's ſervices in the eſtimation of the Houſe, as a condition of your conſent to his Diſmiſſion; but however deſirous we are that this event may take place, we are not diſpoſed to purchaſe it at the expence of our privileges as well as of our money.—You are pleaſed to ſay that Payment has been neglected heretofore: Your Excellency cannot mean to extend this cenſure, to any neglect of payment to our former Agents, for it may ſafely be affirmed, that the Agents for this Province have ever been as well ſupported and paid without exception, as thoſe for any other on the Continent, and ſome of them have been allowed much larger ſtipends than thoſe of moſt of the other Colonies have had: Yet your Excellency, in the ſtrongeſt manner affirms it, at leaſt with regard to Mr. Jackſon, in ſaying "that Payment has been neglected heretofore." Upon recollecting we apprehend you will find, that the Houſe have been in no degree deficient, in an honorable allowance to Mr. Jackſon: He has been Agent only two years; upon his election, a grant was made of two hundred pounds ſterling to enable him to carry on the buſineſs of his Agency, to which your Excellency declined to give your aſſent. The next year the grant was renewed, and your Excellency was then pleaſed to ſign it.

In your Meſſage you obſerve, "that Mr. Jackſon has ſerved us five years, including the current: The three firſt years as our ſtanding Council appointed by commiſſion under the Province Seal:" We humbly apprehend your Excellency is under a miſtake; there being no vote of the Aſſembly to ground ſuch a Commiſſion upon, and only an Inſtruction to Mr. Agent Mauduit, to apply to Mr. Jackſon as Council for the Province in Law Matters: We have never yet been apprized what matters of Law Mr. Mauduit thought proper to conſult him upon, nor indeed do we know any material buſineſs in which he could be jointly employed with Mr. Mauduit in that time: However, when we ſhall be favored with his Bills, if unpaid by Mr. Mauduit, due care will be taken to diſcharge them in our own time and our own way.

Your Excellency makes mention of the moderation and honor of Mr. Jackſon. It is enough that we preſerve our own. We know it belongs of right to a Houſe of Repreſentatives, to be ſo far free and independant judges of the merit of all the Servants of this Government, as to determine an adequate reward for their ſervices, be they ever ſo important. When the demands of Mr. Jackſon ſhall come properly before us, we ſhall as at all times, and in all caſes, take care to do him at leaſt ſtrict-juſtice: In the mean time we muſt humbly, but earneſtly intreat your Excellency to compleat your own deſires, as well as thoſe of the Aſſembly, by giving your aſſent to the Vote, whereby Richard Jackſon, Eſq; will be diſcharged from the ſervice of this Province.

MARCH 2.

Friday laſt his Excellency ſent the following Meſſage to the Honorable Houſe of Repreſentatives, after it had been read in Council and adviſed to by the Board.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

I Should have anſwered your Meſſage of the 14th Inſtant before now, if more urgent buſineſs had not prevented me. However, it is time enough to obſerve that it is the indiſpenſable duty of every Governor to republiſh the Proclamations of other Governors, which regard his Majeſty's general ſervice, or are like to affect the ſubjects of the government. Nor does he thereby make himſelf anſwerable for the truth of the facts mentioned therein to have been committed in another government; as he has no power to enquire into the ſame, nor right to judge thereon. Theſe are the principles which I and the Council acted upon in ordering the republication you complain of.

In the preſent caſe it does not appear therein that the miſdemeanors mentioned to have been committed by the Whalers, are poſitively charged upon the people of this province; nor is there an abſolute neceſſity that they ſhould be applied to them. And if there was, it is not probable that the irregularities of ſome Fiſhermen in diſtant ſeas will affect the credit of a great and reſpectable province. But if it had been ſo, ſtill the republication of theſe Notifications would have been unavoidable. For as they were deſigned to remove the Apprehenſions which had ariſen that the Whale-Fiſhers from the Plantations were wholly precluded from the coaſt therein mentioned, and to notify Ordinances under which the veſſels and goods of all perſons concerned in voyages to thoſe ſeas would be ſubject to forfeiture, it would have been inexcuſable in us to have concealed ſuch Notifications, and thereby to have kept the perſons concerned in ignorance of the terms upon which ſuch Fiſhery would be allowed, or make them ſubject to confiſcation for want of notice of the regulations under which they are required to conduct themſelves. FRA. BERNARD.

Council-Chamber, Feb. 27, 1767.

MARCH 9.

Saturday laſt a Committee of the Honorable Houſe of Repreſentatives waited upon his Excellency with the following Meſſage, viz.

May it pleaſe your EXCELLENCY,

IN your Meſſage to the Houſe of the twenty-ſeventh of February, you were pleaſed to aſſert, that "it is the indiſpenſable duty of every Governor to re-publiſh the Proclamations of other Governors, which regard his Majeſty's general ſervice, or are like to affect the Subjects of the Government, nor does he thereby make himſelf anſwerable for the truth of the facts mentioned therein to have been committed in another Government, as he has no power to enquire into the ſame, nor right to judge thereon." "Theſe" your Excellency declares "are the principles which you and the Council acted upon in ordering the republications" complained of. It is really very difficult for us to conceive that ſuch implicit faith is due from one Governor to another, as to render it an indiſpenſable duty in one, at all events, to re-publiſh the Proclamations of the other, whenever ſuch Proclamations regard his Majeſty's general ſervice, or affect the intereſt of the ſubject. At leaſt this ought to be done without expence to the Province where ſuch re-publications take place. We have alſo ever been of opinion, that all men are in ſome degree anſwerable to the world for the truth of facts alledged not only in their own publications, but in re-publiſhing the works of others, eſpecially when they comprize ſuch heavy charges as thoſe in the Proclamations of Governor Palliſer. From the principles adopted by your Excellency and embraced by the Honorable Board, very ſtrange conſequences might reſult. In ſhort many caſes might be eaſily ſuppoſed, wherein ſuch a compliance, without enquiry into the truth of the facts, inſtead of promoting, would evidently tend greatly to prejudice his Majeſty's ſervice, as well as to ruin the intereſt of the ſubject.

With regard to notifying the trade of Mr. Palliſer's "Ordinances" it moſt certainly might have been effected as well with queſtioning the truth of thoſe criminal charges as without.—We are humbly of opinion, that had the Governor and Council at leaſt hinted a doubt of the truth of thoſe charges, it would have been kindly reſented as a proof of tenderneſs towards the people.

It is with no ſmall pleaſure we find your Excellency recognizing this as a great and reſpectable province, and we are very ſenſible its credit and reputation can never juſtly be affected by thoſe Proclamations of Governor Palliſer: But as miſrepreſentations are at all times dangerous, and this Province has heretofore experienced the ill effects of them, and may again, we think our concern is juſtifiable.

We hear that Mr. William Forbiſher of this Town, Soap-Boiler, has made a Proceſs with Pot-Aſh in making the very beſt of Hard Soap, which has not hitherto been practiſed in England. Samples of which he purpoſes to ſend Home, and if approved of, as is highly probable, will prevent the Importation of Barilla Aſh from Spain, which they before made Uſe of, and will take off from the Colonies near 20 Tons of Pot-aſh to one that the Soft Soap Maker's uſe. Said Forbiſher has given out that he can reduce Pot-Aſh to a certain Standard; if ſo, 'tis worthy the Conſideration of the Guardians of this People.

We hear that John Gardiner, Eſq; (eldeſt Son of Sylveſter Gardener, Eſq; of this Town) an eminent Lawyer in England, is appointed Chief Juſtice of the Province of New-York.

XXXXXXXXXXXX

The Story of Damon and Pythias. By Mr. Brooke.

PLEASURE is, itſelf, an effect, and cannot be the cauſe, or principle, or motive to any thing; it is an agreeable ſenſation that ariſes in any animal, on its meeting or contemplating an object that is ſuited to its nature. As far as the nature of ſuch an animal is evil, evil objects can alone affect it with pleaſure; as far as the nature of ſuch an animal is good, the objects muſt be good whereby its pleaſures are excited.

When Damon was ſentenced by Dionyſius of Syracuſe, to die on ſuch a day, he prayed permiſſion, in the interim, to retire to his own country, to ſet the affairs of his diſconſolate family in order. This the tyrant intended moſt peremptorily to refuſe, by granting it, as he conceived, on the impoſſible conditions of his procuring ſome one to remain, as hoſtage for his return, under equal forfeiture of life. Pythias heard the conditions, and did not wait for an application on the part of Damon; he inſtantly offered himſelf to durance in the place of his friend; and Damon was accordingly ſet at liberty.

The King and all his courtiers were aſtoniſhed at this action; as they could not account for it on any allowed principles. Self-intereſt, in their judgment, was the ſole mover of human affairs; and they looked on virtue, friendſhip, benevolence, love of country, and the like, as terms invented by the wiſe to impoſe upon the weak. They therefore, imputed this act of Pythias to the extravagance of his folly, to the defect of head, merely, and no way to any virtue, or good quality of heart.

When the Day of his deſigned execution drew near, the tyrant had the curioſity to viſit Pythias in his dungeon. Having reproached him for the romantick ſtupidity of his conduct, and rallied him ſome time, for his madneſs in preſuming that Damon by his return, would prove as great a fool as himſelf; "My Lord, (ſaid Pythias, with a firm voice and noble aſpect) I would it were poſſible that I might ſuffer a thouſand deaths, rather than my friend ſhould fail in any article of honour. He cannot fail therein, my Lord. I am as confident of his virtue as I am of my own exiſtence. But I pray, I beſeech the Gods to preſerve the life and integrity of my Damon together. Oppoſe him, ye winds! prevent the eagerneſs and impatience of his honorable endeavours! and ſuffer him not to arrive till, by my death, I have redeemed a life a thouſand times of more conſequence, more eſtimation, than my own; more eſtimable to his lovely wife, to his precious little innocents, to his friends, to his country. O, leave me not to die the worſt of deaths in my Damon."

Dionyſius was confounded and awed by the dignity of theſe ſentiments, and by the manner (ſtill more ſentimental) in which they were uttered; he felt his heart ſtruck by a ſlight ſenſe of invading truth, but it ſerved rather to perplex than undeceive him. He heſitated, he would have ſpoken, but he looked down and retired in ſilence.

The fatal day arrived. Pythias was brought forth, and walked amidſt the guard, with a ſerious but ſatisfied air, to the place of execution.

Dionyſius was already there. He was exalted on a moving throne that was drawn by ſix white horſes, and ſat penſive and attentive to the demeanor of the priſoner.

Pythias came. He vaulted lightly on the ſcaffold; and beholding for ſome time the apparatus of his death, he turned with a pleaſed countenance and addreſſed the aſſembly:

"My prayers are heard; (he cried) the Gods are propitious! you know, my friends, that the winds have been contrary till yeſterday, Damon could not come, he could not conquer impoſſibilities; he will be here to-morrow, and the blood which is ſhed to day ſhall have ranſomed the life of my friend. O, could I eraſe from your boſoms every doubt, every mean ſuſpicion of the honour of the man for whom I am about to ſuffer, I ſhould go to my death even as I would to my bridal! Be it ſufficient in the mean time, that my friend will be found noble; that his truth is unimpeachable, that he will ſpeedily approve it, that he is now on his way, hurrying on, accuſing himſelf, the adverſe elements, and the gods. But I haſten to prevent his ſpeed; executioner, to your office."

As he pronounced the laſt words, a buzza began to ariſe amongſt the remoteſt of the people. A diſtant voice was heard. The croud caught the words; and, "ſtop, ſtop the execution!" was repeated by the whole aſſembly.

A man came at full ſpeed. The Throng gave way to his approach. He was mounted on a ſteed of foam. In an inſtant he was off his horſe, on the ſcaffold, and held Pythias ſtraitly embraced.

"You are ſafe, (he cried) you are ſafe, my friend, my beloved; the gods be praiſed you are ſafe! I now have nothing but death to ſuffer, and I am delivered from the anguiſh of thoſe reproaches which I gave myſelf, for having endangered a life ſo much dearer than my own."

Pale, cold, and half ſpeechleſs in the arms of his Damon, Pythias replied in broken accents,—"fatal haſte!—cruel impatience!—what invious powers have wrought impoſſibilities in your favour?—But I will not be wholly diſappointed.—Since I cannot die to ſave, I will not ſurvive you."

Dionyſius heard, beheld, and conſidered all with aſtoniſhment. His heart was touched. His eyes were opened; and he could no longer refuſe his aſſent to truths ſo inconteſtably approved by their facts.

He deſcended from his throne. He aſcended the ſcaffold. "Live, live, ye incomparable pair!" he exclaimed, "Ye have borne unqueſtionable teſtimony to the exiſtence of virtue, and that virtue, equally evinces the certainty of the exiſtence of a God to reward it. Live happy, live renowned! and, O, form me by your precepts, as ye have invited me by your example, to be worthy of the participation of ſo ſacred a friendſhip."

To the Printer of the London Chronicle.

SIR,

WHEN the tide of luxury that overwhelms the Great, ebbs or ſubſides; when wiſdom and merit take place of pride and conceit; when religion is more regarded for her own ſake, then for outward ſhew and oſtentation; and when Miniſters really love their country and the common weal better than gold, ambition or private intereſt; then will honeſt poverty be leſs contemptible, proviſions cheaper, the poor leſs miſerable, merit will be encouraged and rewarded, vanity deteſted, piety reverenced and eſteemed, the ſtate at peace within, happy and reſpected without, and England become tranſcendently renowned and glorious. Till then hirelings and ſcribblers may howl and roar like jarring elements, Pitites and Butites, like the vulture of Prometheus, rend our bowels, and leave us void of hope or comfort; pride may inſult merit, enthuſiaſm mock religion, our country exhibit a ſcence of inteſtine faction the ſport or prey of neighbouring nations, the poor ſtarve, and all be ſwallowed into the yawing jaws of civil diſſentions or perpetual ſlavery; which God avert.

I am, Sir, your humble ſervant,
LICHFELDA.

LONDON, December 19.

It is a true maxim, that a people receives as honour in the country——Experience tells us there is no rule that will not admit of exception.—At present, a third of Germany is in an uproar on occasion of a second sighted German, a native and inhabitant of Cologne. It is strongly affirmed, that in the year 1764, he promulged, that the Dauphin of France would die in the year 1765, and he DID so!——That in 1763 he gave out, that there would be a considerable earthquake at Constantinople in 1766, and there WAS one!——And that, now, in 1766, he has publickly predicted, that there will be a terrible earthquake in London in 1767; that almost the whole of Asia will be buried in ruins, by another, 1768; and, that the world will be finally at an end in 1773.——This story passes in many parts of Germany, as a truth; but the intelligent seem to regard the fulfilled prophecies, as prophecies uttered after the completion of the event——the only certain method of prophecy making.

In November, the river Tarne in Italy, overflowed its banks in such a manner, that the suburbs of Montauban were laid under water, the foundations of the houses undermined and many of them thrown down. Upwards of 200 families have been obliged to fly with their best effects, to seek for bread in the higher parts of the city in the day, and to take shelter in the night in the churches. Their situation is the most deplorable, and the fatal effects of this deluge throughout the whole district are inexpressibly mournful.

His Excellency M. Mello de Castro, envoy extraordinary from Portugal, has had a conference of some hours with the two secretaries, on the grievances complained of by the merchants concerned in the trade to Portugal. These grievances are, 1. breach of treaties; 2. unjust seizures of money; 3. unwarrantable monopolies; 4. illegal impositions; 5. detention of just debts; 6. restraints laid upon trade; 7. the most arbitrary decisions in their courts of justice; and, 8. partiality in favour of other nations; insomuch that the British merchants are now subject to the most unprecedented oppressions.

Whitehall, Dec. 23. The King has been pleased to grant unto his Grace Harry Duke of Bolton, the Offices of Governor and Captain of the Isle of Wight, and Governor of Carisbrook Castle, and of Constable and Door-keeper of the said Castle of Carisbrook, and of Steward, Surveyor, Receiver and Bailiff of all manors, lands, tenements, woods, hereditaments, and other revenues, within the island, in the room of the Right Honourable Hans Stanley, Esq.

The King has been pleased to grant unto Charles Earl Cornwallis, the offices of Warden, Chief Justice, and Justice in Eyre, of all forests, chases, parks, and warrens, on this side Trent, in the room of the Right Honourable John Lord Monson.

CHARLES-TOWN, April 7.

LETTERS from Martinico of the 4th instant, advise, that the effects of the terrible Hurricane which happened there in August last, still continue to be felt very severely throughout the whole Island; and that the French King had done every thing in his power to alleviate the misfortunes of his subjects there, by granting every indulgence that could be wished, and ordering large quantities of Beef and other provisions to be transported and distributed among the poorer sort; but that there was an evil which they could not overcome "the want of Cash," the Island having been so dreaned of specie by foreign vessels, that an Ordonnance was shortly to be issued, requiring the masters of all such vessels, in future, to give security that they will take in payment for their cargoes nothing but melasses, sugars and other goods.

We hear that the crop of Sugars throughout the British West-India Islands will be the greatest this year ever made.

From Savannah, in Georgia, we learn, that the two Troops of Rangers, which have been in the Service of that Province for several Years, have been disbanded, in Consequence of Orders from General Gage.——And that the General Assembly have appointed Commissioners to purchase of Josiah Tattnell, Esq; One hundred and four Acres of Land, for the Purpose of erecting a Lazaretto, upon Tybee Island.

On Tuesday last, Antonio Christian, a Spaniard, was executed here, for the Murder of one Mr. Broughton.

A Paragraph of an Act of Parliament, made in the Third Year of his present Majesty's Reign, for granting a Bounty upon HEMP and FLAX.

"THAT all and every Person and Persons importing any such Hemp or Flax into Great-Britain, shall produce to the chief Officer, or Officers of the Customs, a Certificate or Certificates, under the Hand and Seal of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Collector of his Majesty's Customs, and Naval-Officer, or any two of them, residing and being within any of his Majesty's Colonies and Plantations; that before the Departure of such Ship, or Vessel, Sloop, or Vessels, the Person or Persons, Merchant, Trader or Factor, loading the same, had made Oath before them, that the said Hemp or Flax, so shipped on board, (expressing in said Certificate, the Number, Marks, and Packages of such Hemp and Flax) were truly and bona fida, of the Growth and Produce of his Majesty's said Colonies and Plantations; which Oath, the said Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Collector of his Majesty's Customs, and Naval-Officer, or any two of them, are hereby authorized to administer."

The Act of Parliament, relating to the Bounty on Naval Stores, is as follows, viz.

"The Bounty not to be paid until a Certificate has been produced under the Hands and Seals of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, or Collector of his Majesty's Customs, and the Naval-Officer, or any two of them, residing within any of his Majesty's Plantations, testifying before the Departure of the Ship, the Person loading the same, had made Oath before them, that the said Stores were truly and bona fida of the Growth and Produce of his Majesty's said Plantations, &c."

The Act of Parliament, relating to the Bounty on INDICO, sets forth:

"That before the Bounty can be received, a Certificate must be produced from under the Hands and Seals of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Collector, and Comptroller of the Customs, and Naval-Officer of the Colony, or any two of them, that the said Indico is of the Growth and Produce of his Majesty's Plantations, &c."
